

No...No...No!!! As a flight attendant with Airtran Airways I see everyday the hassle of organizing passengers into safety compliance. Cell phones aboard my aircraft would and I promise it would create more distraction for passengers and for us the flight crew doing our jobs. I'm speaking of in flight at cruise altitude even. Think of flight time as a mini-vacation away from your cell phone. I do. I think, thank God my cell phone can't ring- I'm at 35,000 ft. Our business passengers do their business work on the plane. Then they stop, take a sip of their drink and stop for a minute, that minute turns into a relaxing hour. If they have to do work they do other work that doesn't require a cell phone. If it's not broken don't fix it. If you proceed and this passes may you sit in a middle seat in the aft cabin to Orlando, Florida in the middle of summer vacation between a family and a business man on his cell phone trying to prove to complete strangers around him that his business is so important by spouting numbers and cities he's traveled to. You'll wish you were going to Disney with the family with the crying baby. Welcome Aboard!
